

AMERICA WILL SEND MILLION

Contribution Will Not Only Be Men but Guns of New Type.

THEY ARE GOING STRONG

Gen. Goethals Co-Operates With Army and Navy in Troop Movement.

(International News Service.)

Washington, May 9.—America's contribution to the allied army reserve, which will stop the Hun advance in Belgium, France and Italy, will be at least 1,000,000 by July 1. It will not alone be men, however, but guns of a new type, designed to cope with the latest terrors of Krupp and the Skoda plants, will be brought into action. The limitations of the United States have been human limitations up to now. These are being overcome with a rapidity that is close to marvelous. It was learned today that Secretary of War Baker was characteristically conservative in his forecast of "half a million" promised the senate military affairs committee in January to be "over there" early this year, had been made good. Figures cannot be dealt with, except in round numbers, but it can be said today on authority that cannot be questioned, that by the time 1918 is half over—July 1 to be exact—the American land forces across the Atlantic will exceed 1,000,000 men.

The troop movements of the last three months and which will continue indefinitely provide a chapter of military efficiency which will thrill all Americans when the details can be published. The great fleet of fast transports created by the army and navy and added to by France, Great Britain and Japan, has met the great problem of the war, how to utilize the manpower of the United States. Germany knows this. This is the secret of the German stuporous efforts on the western front. They fear the American manpower which will turn the scales through sheer weight of number and they have tried and continue to try, to force the decision before the million Americans reach the front. This now will be impossible, army experts say.

The greatest single factor in the troop movements has been Maj.-Gen. Geo. W. Goethals. His reorganization of the quartermaster's department went to every branch. In consequence the movements of men and supplies goes forward in the easiest possible manner. Not alone do the travel overseas on the fast transports, but every supply vessel leaving an Atlantic port carries its quota of soldiers destined for a British or French port.

Gen. Goethals is co-operating in every way with the army and this makes possible the convey system which is defeating and rendering naught the submarine menace. Today Germany is using only her largest type of sea-going submarines and they are able only to get slow cargo carriers. The huge squadrons of destroyers that convey supply ships and transports are doing wonderful work in combating the German underwater craft. The British and American destroyers and submarine chasers probably accounted for twenty submarines during March and April. Eleven are positively known to have been destroyed. Confidential reports reaching entente sources say. More than eight others were attacked and there is plenty of evidence that they were sunk, but because positive evidence was impossible to secure, they were carried simply as "probably destroyed." And by the latter part of this year the coastal protection system now being carried out will have been so extended to the coasts of Britain, France and Italy that submarine pirates will have to operate so far from their bases that their efficiency will be almost entirely destroyed.

Announcement in last night's dispatches that "American heavy artillery was fired for the first time in the sector northwest of Toul" is far more significant than appears on the surface. Details of the caliber of these guns and in fact all facts about them must be withheld for the present. But army ordinance officers who know what is going on say that these guns

Where They Hold the Line Against the Germans

From the channel to the Swiss border allied soldiers hold the line against the German foe forces. The map shows how democracy's defending line is divided up among the soldiers of liberty. Far in the north, on Belgian soil, northeast of Ypres, are the Belgians. Then starts the British line running all the way south to Amiens, with the exception of a bit held by Portuguese near Albert. The British colonial forces are here included, the Canadians just south of Arras and the Australians north of Amiens.

are the latest in their line and that they outclass the famous Austrian Skoda guns, which the Germans have brought up to blast the way through to the coast and to Paris. And in the line of artillery surprises Uncle Sam is just now beginning to play his cards, officers, who know, tell me. They say that when an announcement is made—and the first word very likely will come via Berlin—American guns again will have demonstrated its superiority.

The new system, now in effect, of moving troops from transport points is a great improvement over the old. No longer are open roads, and busy highways, crowded with troops, advertising to enemy spies times and places of sailing. Now train loads of troops run into selected points in the afternoon. With nightfall transports slip into their docks. Men and supplies are loaded with expedition and dispatch and before the first grey streaks of dawn lighten up the eastern skies, the vessel, with their complement of fighting men, have departed for an overseas port.

Premier Lloyd George has said that this war will be won by the side which is able to bring up its last reserve. That is what Uncle Sam is preparing to do right now. Every man in this country who has had his six months of training will go overseas this summer. And the new men who are constantly being drafted will follow them speedily and in orderly fashion and ready to keep Pershing's divisions at all times recruited to full strength.

centering near Hangard, are our own Samuels. Here they bear their share of the brunt of the German offensive. Down farther south, near Toul, are more Americans holding the original line allotted to Gen. Pershing's soldiers.

The French line begins near Amiens and excepting the American positions holds the miles of trenches all the way to Switzerland.

On the German side arrows indicate the possible new offensive drives believed to be contemplated by the German foe, at Ypres, at Arras, and at Amiens.

ARRANGE FOR COMING CHURCH CONFERENCE

Interesting Meeting of Ward of Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament.

Christ church ward of the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament held an interesting meeting last night. They arranged to entertain the visitors to a conference to be held in Chattanooga, June 2-5 during the octave of the Feast of Corpus Christi. The conference will consist of special services held in honor of Christ's presence in the Blessed Sacrament, with papers read by prominent priests.

The Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament was established in England some seventy-five years ago by Canon Carter for the purpose of prayer and intercession and inculcating the presence of Jesus in the holy sacrament. This is the fiftieth anniversary of its establishment in the United States.

The meeting held here is the first conference of the society in the province of Seawane, composed of the southern dioceses of the Episcopal church. The work of the confraternity is next in this province, but since Father Robertson has been appointed provincial supervisor he has enlisted the interest of a number of priests and congregations in the south.

The ward at Christ church met last night to arrange to entertain the priests and laymen who come. L. B. West is chairman of the hospitality committee. J. E. Dugger chairman of the reception committee. C. R. Moss chairman of the committee on arrangements. Mrs. W. T. Gaston chairman of the committee on refreshments. C. H. Bohr chairman of the press committee.

Among those on the program are Rev. Charles Mercer Hall, Asheville, who will read a paper on "The Extra-Liturgical Use of the Blessed Sacrament"; Father Robertson, who will read a paper on "The Use of Incense in the Worship of the Church"; Father Lobdell, head of the associate missions at Rutherfordton, N. C., who will be one of the preachers, and Father Wragg, of Columbus, Ga., who will also read one of the papers. A number of colored priests will be entertained by the colored congregation of St. Mary the Virgin and special services will be held at that church on Chestnut street.

O. P. DARWIN WILLING TO SERVE AS SENATOR

Does Not Care to Enter Into a Scramble, but Will Run if Party Wants Him.

The many friends of O. P. Darwin are urging him to allow his name to be used in connection with the race for the state senate. While Mr. Darwin has not as yet considered the race, he stated to a News reporter Thursday morning that if the leaders of his party wanted him to make the race he would do so, but under no condition would he enter into a race where there was a prospective fight to be made. "This is the time," said the young attorney, "when it is every man's patriotic duty to assist in every manner possible the winning of the war and I believe that to the next legislature there should be sent high-class men and men of ability who will make the laws and assist in every way possible in securing legislation that will be of benefit to the country. The next legislature will be one of great importance and men of affairs and not politicians should be elected to office."

Mr. Darwin is one of the leading young lawyers of the local bar and no man stands higher in either legal or civic circles. Though yet a young lawyer, he commands one of the best practices of the younger lawyers and his ability and high standing in Hamilton county make him eminently fitted for the important duties of senator from Hamilton county.

J. Read Voigt, whose name has been mentioned as a prospective candidate, has formally announced that he finds it impracticable to make the race and has therefore withdrawn.

This leaves only Fred Shepherd as an announced candidate and the race for the democratic nomination will be between him and Mr. Darwin.
